THE PLAGUE IN HONGKONG. RECOGNITION OF SERVICES. The following documents have been forwarded to us for publication :---The Permanent Committee, Sanitary Board, 24th Sept., 1894.

SIR. -The work of the Permanent Committee of the Sanitary Board is nearly at an end, and their report on the Plague, and on the work done under their orders and on their responsibility in connection therewith since the 10th May last, is in the course of preparation and will soon be submitted for the consideration of the Sanitary Board and of the Government; but the Committee think it right, without waiting for the completion of that report, to call the attention of His Excellency the Governor to the very valuable services rendered to the Committee and to the public, during the prevalence of the epidemic, by the officers and men of the Army and Navy, by the Volunteers who came forward in response to an appeal for assistance put forward by this Committee, by the Officers of the Board and other members of the Civil Service especially detailed for the work, and by the Inspectors, Sergeants and Constables of the Police Force, who volunteered their services in aid of the Sanitary Inspectors of the Board.

2. The Committee are addressing separate reports to the Government in acknowledgment of the services rendered by the Army and Navy, and by the Volunteers, and propose to deal in this report with the services of the officers of the Sanitary Board, of the members of the Civil Service and of the Police only.

3. At the date of the outbreak of the plague the Sanitary Board had at its disposal, for the entire sanitary work of the Colony, its Acting Superintendent, Mr Ram ; Mr Crook, Sanitary Surveyor, who was also in charge of the public drains as an officer of the Public Works Department and was the Water Authority; and five Inspectors of Nuisances, including the Chief Inspector. Mr Germain: each Inspector, other than Mr Germain, had an Interpreter and two foremon attached to him for the special work of his district. One of tho Inspectors was at Kowloon with his Assistants, so that there were only available on this side of the water, Mr Germain and three Inspectors, with three interpreters and six foremen.

Mr Crook was at once detailed to take responsible charge of the work of disinfecting and cleaning all houses in which plague gases had occurred or should occur. He was left a free hand to get what men and tools he required, to select, under proper advice, his own disinfectants, to arrange his own methods of work, and, so long as the work was well and effectively done, to exorcise a very wide discretion as to the means. The Permanent Committee have only to say that the work was thoroughly well done and to their perfect eatisfaction, and without any hitch or any complaints from the beginning to the end. Mr Crook had the valuable assistance of Lieutenant Boys, R.E., (with reference to whom a special report is being sent in) of twenty four non-commissioned officers and men of the Sappers, and of others with such Chinese help as he needed, and (after the closing of Tai-Ping-Shan area) of Messrs Orow and Brown from the Civil Hospital: but the burden of the work felon his shoulders and he was responsible to this Committee and to the Board for the whole of the cleaning and disinfecting. During the entire period, from the 11th May to date. Mr Crook has been at work. labouring daily from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. and often later without any rest or relaxation, and, in addition to plague work, he has

'Problems

Only a small portion of the book is devoted to the Land of the Rising Sun. So much has already been written about Japan, that Mr Curzon takes it for granted Korea. Of Britain's interests in Korea, the British public knows enough to form a Mr Curzon writes :correct conception of the country. people and its national characteristics. Japan and the Powers, one of the two chapters devoted to Japan, consists, almost entirely, of a discussion of the subject of Treaty Revision. After stating the case for Japan, he says :—

whom the Powers, through their Ministers. are the official spokesmen, are not particularly keen about the opening up of the country, in which they do not see the prospect of great mercantile advantage to themselves; they are averse to the conditions under which they hold land in the Settlements (as the result of a covenant with the Japanese Government) being altered or assimilated to native custom without their consent; and they are genuinely alarmed at the proposed abolition of Consular jurisdiction and the settlement of all cases, in which they may be concerned as litigants, in Japanese courts and before Japanese judges. They point to the admitted facts that the reorganised courts have not been long established, and that i the Bench, though occupied by Japanese who have been partially educated in Western Universities, lacks alike the tradition and the distinction of European Judiciaries. They contend that miscarriage of justice would result, in the main from the gnorance, sometimes, perhaps, from the prejudice, of native judges. They fear the risk and complexity of processes before a strange court in a strange language : and they resent the possible subjection of their lives and homes to the domiciliary visits of native policemen. Moreover, they have a well-founded distrust, not morely of the administration of the Japanese law, but of the law itself, particularly in such points as the law of evidence and the laws of contract, which are interpreted in Japan in a manner little in harmony with European ideas. Finally, they can point in support of their clarms to the constant diplomatic troubles arising out of "miscarriage of justice" in the small independent States' of the New World. Some of their papers publish very wild and silly articles about the inherent incapacity of the Japanese for the exercise of judicial authority of any kind although I suspect that many of the British merchants who may be involved as litigants in the courts of the petty South American Republics would not so very greatly object to a change of venue to the modern Japan. But though these more extravagant distribes may be disregarded. there is undoubtedly a solid substratum of truth in the apprehensions of the foreign trading community, and any attempt to precipitate too hasty a solution might involve the Japanese Government itself in difficulties which it had not contemplated." His closing remarks are:--

'Great Britain remains as she has all along been, the pivot of the situation-no slight proof of her commanding influence on the destinies of distant Asia. If the negotiations be conducted between the two Governments on the basis of a fair and proportionate exchange, there should be no insurmountable barrier to an amicable solution. Britain appears to have favoured China's pretensions as suzerain. When she agreed to give up Port Hamilton, she obtained a guarantee from China that that country would never allow Russia or any other foreign Power to occupy Korean territory. Provided China can be depended on to fulfil her guarantee, this was an important precaution to take. But Russia is gradually circumventing China, and as soon as the present struggle is concluded, the Western Powers may have to take action to prevent an extension of Russian influence in

'The primary interest of Great Britain in Korea is as a market for an already considerable trade. Of far greater moment, however, is the secondary and contingent interest arising out of the political future. A country so well provided with harbours which could both supply and shelter great The merchants, on the other hand, for flotillas, and so richly endowed with many potential sources of wealth, might involve a serious menace to British commerce and interests throughout the China seas, and even in the Pacific Ocean, if held by a hostile State. A Russian port and fleet, for instance, in the Gulf of Pechili would. in time of war, constitute as formidable a danger to British shipping in the Yellow Sea as they would to the metropolitan province and the capital of China. Permanent Russian squadrons at Port Lazareff and Fusan would convert her into the greatest naval Power in the Pacific. The balance of power in the Far East would be seriously icopardised, if not absolutely overturned, by such a development; and England is prohibited alike by her Imperial objects and her commercial needs from lending her sanction to any such issue." "Dear Sir,—I am a poor hand at expressing my feeling, but I should like to thank you. Your lozenges have done wonders in relieving my terrible cough. Since I had the operation of 'Trachetomy' (the same as the late Emperor of Germany, and unlike him, thank God, I am still alive) performed at St. Bartholomew's Hospital no one could possibly have had a more violent cough; it was so bad at times that it quite exhausted me. The muchs, which was very copious and hard, has me. The mucus, which was very copious and hard, has been softened, and I have been able to get rid of it without difficulty.—I am sir, yours truly, J. HILL.

UTTERLY UNRIVALLED. UTTERLY UNRIVALLED. The above speaks for itself. From strict inquiry it appears that the benefit from using Keating's Cough Lozenges is understated. The operation was a specially severe one and was performed by the speculist, Dr. H. T. Butlin, of St. Bartholomew's Hospital. Since the operation the only means of relief is the use of these Lozenges. So successful are they that one affords immediate benefit, although from the nature of the case the throat irritation is intense. the throat irritation is intense
